Balboa Performing Arts Theater Foundation

Cynthia Cowell introduced Craig B. Smith, Ph.D. Dr. Smith's 40 year career has combined engineering design and construction of major projects involving advanced technologies.

Cynthia Cowell

Dr. Smith is former president of Daniel, Mann, Johnson, Mendenhall, Holmes & Narver, a global engineering, architecture, and construction firm that has been involved in many major public works projects, including the renovating of the Pentagon before and after 9/11. He holds a Ph.D. in engineering from UCLA, where he was an assistant professor of engineering and assistant director of the Nuclear Energy Laboratory.

After retiring he turned to his love of writing full-time and published How the Great Pyramid was Built, Extreme Waves and most recently, Lightning: Fire from the Sky. His philanthropic activities including serving on the Board of Directors of the Balboa Performing Arts Theater Foundation in Newport Beach and the Newport Harbor Nautical Museum.

The Balboa Theatre is undergoing a $2.5 million dollar restoration project, led by community activist and President of the Balboa Performing Arts Theater Foundation, Dayna Pettit. The project will turn the 1928 movie palace into a cinema and performing arts center that will be capable of hosting live events and films for 350 people. Closed as a movie theatre in 1992, after years of lobbying the city for support, the city of Newport Beach purchased the building in 1998, and with construction underway, a proposal was made to re-open the theatre in 2008.

Plans may call for a return of "The Rocky Horror Picture Show" which had been a controversial staple of the beach community's cinema. Dr. Smith reported that the City has purchased the Balboa Market and will be tearing it down to create more parking.
